Unseen Alchemy

Side Story/Least Important

Main Story/Most Important

It's a beautiful summer day today. You just woke up and decided to spend the day enjoying the outdoors. You take your backpack and bike, hoping to explore the city.

Decision 1: You come to an intersection, do you turn left or right?

Left: You turn left and find a restaurant. Realizing you forgot to eat, you stop by and grab some food.

You have already explored this part of the city so you go back to the intersection and turn right this time.

You turn right and find some very old buildings. One of those buildings was a library, you love to read.

Right: You turn right and find some very old buildings. One of those buildings was a library, you love to read.

Decision 2: Do you enter the library or go back home?

Home: You decide not to go to the library and instead go back home thinking there is nothing to explore.

ENDING 1

Library: You settle on visiting the library, what could go wrong?

After entering the library, you notice there isn't anyone there, except for one mysterious lady, presumably the librarian. She gives you a smile and you continue to browse the library. The bookshelves were dusty and covered in cobwebs. It was almost as if no one had been here for years...

You stumble upon an unusually marked book named "Unseen Alchemy". You try to take the book but it won't move. Finally, you take the book from the bookshelf and start to examine it. At the back of the bookshelf against the wall where the book was, there was what looked like a keyhole. You open the peculiar book, filled with symbols resembling chemistry, unlike anything you've seen before. You also find a key, possibly one that fits in the keyhole.

You turn the key into the keyhole, which reveals a hidden entrance within the bookshelves.

Decision 3: Do you enter the mysterious entrance or go back home?

Home: You decide not to enter the mysterious entrance.

ENDING 2

Entrance: You decide to enter the mysterious entrance.

Once you enter, you find a sleek, and modern laboratory. While you're busy understanding where you are, suddenly the secret door closes behind you. You start to panic and attempt to reopen the door, but you soon realize, it's no use.

You're trapped, and now you have to find a way out of here, alone.

You need to find a way out of here as fast as you can. You explore the lab and you see a bunch of chemicals and scientific equipment. On one of the tables lies a note.

Decision 4: Do you read the note?

No: You decide not to read the note.

Yes: You decide to read the note. The note reads

“Entry 217. Attempted Test 15. Learned: Green is fatal.”
You look inside your book to find something about these chemicals. You discover that a mysterious blue chemical named “Cobalt” is safe. There are 3 test tubes in front of you, each with a unique chemical. One blue, one red, and one yellow. You think that the red one is suspicious.

Decision 5: Do you mix the red or yellow chemical with Cobalt?

Yellow: You mix the yellow chemical... BOOM

ENDING 3

Red: You mix the red chemical.

You created a purple chemical that you plan to use in your escape. You look around the lab, there isn't much inside here, however, you find a panel in the wall near the closed entrance. It might be a control panel, you see hope. You try to open the panel but it's stuck on something. It almost feels like it's stuck indefinitely. You consider maybe using the unusual chemical you created to open this panel.

Decision 6: What will happen to the panel if you pour this chemical?

Explosion: You don't pour the chemical on the panel because you're afraid of the aftereffect.

You look for a different way to escape the lab. "There must be a way to get out of here from the inside..." you wonder. There seems to be a remote activation method that doesn't function. You accidentally spill the purple chemical trying to find a hidden remote...

ENDING 4

Dissolve: You pour the chemical on the panel which slowly dissolved the metal casing, revealing wiring.

There are 4 wires, cutting the right one will open the door, and cutting the wrong one will disable the door. You see one red, green, blue, and black wire.

Decision 7: Do you cut the red, green, blue, or black wire?

Green: Red light, systems powering off.

Black: Green light, commencing opening protocol.

You've done it! You escaped! You swiftly run from the library while dropping the unusual book on the ground and bike home. As frightened as you are, deep down, you enjoyed the thrill...

Decision 8: Do you tell anyone about your adventure?

No: You keep the secret to yourself, hiding the truths you uncovered. You wonder if the secret entrance is still there. What was the purpose of it to begin with? Who trapped him in there? So many questions, and so few answers.

ENDING 5

Yes: A day later, you tell a few of your friends about the adventure, your friends don't believe you so you take them to the library, attempting to show them the secret door. You search the bookshelf and you come across the same book, "Unseen Alchemy". You remove the book from the bookshelf but you find nothing. No key inside the book, and no keyhole in the wall...

ENDING 6
